NACHSHON is a furniture design studio from Haifa, Israel, which includes a manufacturing workshop. Each piece of furniture is thoughtfully designed with an understanding of materials, techniques, and careful consideration of human needs.

NACHSHON is a local business with a small family-based team and has a deep-rooted belief in the value of craft and craftsmanship. The craftsmen play a significant part in the workshop and take deep care in every stage of the manufacturing process.

The furniture is designed with a New-Modern approach, balanced between classic-international design and a contemporary-local point of view. Aspiring to create furniture that is built to last, the manufacturing process combines traditional and new materials with innovative techniques and technologies.

NACHSHON Studio took on itself to develop design that enhances the quality of life of its users, and that draws from its local context and character.

Tomer Nachshon, an Israeli architect, designer and the founder of NACHSHON studio. While growing up he absorbed the love and understanding of materials and techniques, which he applies today to create his different products. His combination of architectural knowledge and physical skills enables constant interaction between different scales and points of view.

CRAFTSMANSHIP

Gad Nachshon, Tomer's father, was born in the same house that later became the business's workshop. Gad founded a business for sound and light systems. In his spare time, he also built pieces of furniture for his own household. For Tomer, Gad is the inspiration for establishing his own studio.

For all things metalsmithing, analog machining, lathe work, and welding of every kind, Vladimir (Vova) has you covered. He has worked with the family for the lion's share of 20 years. Studying basic machining in school, as well as self-training, he never gives up no matter how difficult the mission. That makes Vladimir the great craftsman that he is.

Adva is an architect and the manager and curator of the studio. She has the perfect combination of management and direction skills as well as a deep understanding of the design world. She takes part in every decision in the studio's life.
